

Diverse and independent media sources are vital to the continuation of our democratic republic. Rather than helping media giants further consolidate their grip on the public airwaves, the FCC should be doing all it can to promote media that is free of corporate control and the dominance of a few media "megamonoliths". The public airwaves are PUBLIC and should be used to serve the public interest, not increase profits of media conglomerates.